THE FIRST THANKSGIVING DINNER.

Indian Chiefs Hospitably Entertain ed by Pilgrim Fathers,

The first Thanksgiving was appointe by Govenor Bradford, at Plymouth, Mas sachusetts, in 1621, the year following the landing of the Pilgrims, in order that the Colonists in a more special way could rejoice together at having all things in good and plenty, writes Clifford How ard in the November Ladies' Home Jour nal. In preparation for the feast "gunners were sent into the woods for wild numbers; kitchens were made ready for preparing the feast—especially the large one in Dame Brewster's house, which was under the immediate direction and was under the immediate direction and charge of Priscilla Molines, she who af-terward became the wife of John Alden —while a messenger was dispatched to invite Massasoit, the chief of the friendly tribe, to attend to celebration.

"Early on the morning of the ap-ointed Thursday—about the first of No-ember—Massasoit and ninety of his arriors arrived on the outskirts of the warriors strived on the outskirts of the value of their readiness to early wile hospitality of their white brethren. The little settlement, which now consisted of seven dwellings and four public buildings, was soon sait with men, women and children, who gave the Indians a hearty welcome as they filed into the large square, so the first of the Governor's house.
